Melvyn's TALKING PICTURES

Hello, I'm Melvyn Hayes inviting you to join me for another rarely-seem gem from that glittering decade, the 1930's. This week on Melvyn's Talking Pictures, we bring you Rich and Strange from 1931, directed by the master himself, Alfred Hitchcock. Rich and Strange stars Henry Kendall and Joan Barry as a couple leading a humdrum existence. A gift of money frees them up to travel the world, but this new carefree life threatens to tear their marriage apart. This romantic drama is one of Hitchcock's lesser-known films and I'm excited to be showing it for you. Thursday at 3pm for Melvyn's Talking Pictures.
